The constant succession of our experiences we attribute to concomitant change in the objects of experience; we recognize the existence of phenomena. The succession of phenomena, on careful investigation, is found to have one predominating peculiarity; phenomena are related in experience. They do not pass unconnected, or in random fashion, as though due to a fortuitous concourse of atoms; they are, on the contrary, distinctly connected. It is this relation of phenomena which gives a definite meaning to science. By reason of past experiences, either individual or those preserved in the progress of the race, we are able more or less to foretell the future course of phenomena; we form an expectation of a connexion between possible experiences, which Ostwald identifies with a so-called law of nature. We have no guarantee that the expectation will be fulfilled; all we can say is that...
