White empurpled shower Of mingled blossoms. Between the Moulte, on the North-West, and the high promontory that terminates in the Bolt-head on the South-West, (which constitutes part of the manor of East Sewer, belonging to the viscount Courtenay,) is a sinuous flexure called South Sand, similar to that South sand, already mentioned on the North-West side of Salcombe Castle. This is the re-commencement of the freehold of Edmund Pollexfen Bastard, esq. M. P. and is part of the manor of Batson before mentioned. Large quantities of sea-sand, and various species of the marine plants, Fucus, Salsola, and Salicornia, Ore.weed (commonly named Ore-Weed,) thrown in by the rolling surge, are here taken at will by the occupiers of farms throughout the parish of Malborough, and carried for manure. The right is founded upon an unvarying custom time immemorial, undenied and uninterrupted, and...
