A Historical Review of Chinese Shipbuilding Viewed broadly, the shipbuilding development strategy chosen by CSSC during this early period was similar to that which had propelled Japan to remarkable shipbuilding successes in the 1950s - 60s and South Korea in the late 1970s - 90s. China targeted ship-building as a pillar industry for national economic development and growth in other heavy industrial sectors (such as steel); it leveraged labor cost advantages, imported critical technology and manufacturing best practices from world shipbuilding leaders, and targeted export sales as a means of obtaining hard currency to fuel further eco-8 Despite these general similarities, however, parallels with a Japanese or Korean development model begin to break down when viewed more closely. The economic structures of the Japanese keiretsu and Korean chaebol business networks differ from each other, and were both dissimilar to the Chinese jituan-style business conglomerate that took shape in CSSC. Furthermore, Japanese and Korean shipbuilders were fundamentally capital-accumulating corporations, operating in regulated market economies, from the very start of their development. Conversely, CSSC remained answerable to the central government and operated as a rare corporate entity within 9 a communist planned economy struggling to transform itself.
